Heavy security in Jerusalem Nine Arabs shot dead this week

July 22, | Agencies ): Tight Israeli security ahead of a Muslim feastday dampened Palestinian protests in Jerusalem today and foiled an attempt to smuggle petrol bombs in to a Muslim holy

A police elampdown on Arab east Jerusalem combined with preparations for the Muslim Eid Al Adha feast on Sunday to end a week of the fiercest clashes between troops and Palestinians for several months, police said.

Israeli soldiers shot dead nine Arabs this week and two more died of gunshot wounds sustained earlier in the sevenmonth-old Palestinian uprising in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Soldiers shot and killed at least three Pales Unians and wounded as many as 17 yesterday when rioting erupted in the occupied West Bank town of Nablus.

The elashes in Tulkarm and the Arah marketplace of Nablus yesterday erupted one day after oldiers shot and killed three Palestinians in the West Bank towns of Jenin and Shuyukh.

UNITED NATIONS, July 22, (Agencies): A unanimous UN Security Council resolution expressed "deep distress" over the deaths of all 290 people aboard Iran Air Flight 655, but stopped short of apportioning blame for the July 3 downing of the airliner by a US warship. The resolution, adopted on Vednesday by all 15 members of the Security Council following days of difficult negotiations over the wording, also avoided a demand by Iran for a review of the naval presence, in the Gulf, of the United States, Britain, France, Italy and the Neth-

US officials have said the cruiser USS Vincennes, which had been trading gunfire with Iranian speedboats, fired two missiles at the civilian airplane after mistaking it for an Iranian F-14 fighter.

President Reagan expressed regrets for the accident and has offered compensation to families of the victims.

US Amhassador to the United Nations Vernon Walters voted in favour of the resolution, saying the incident was a "tragic accident." But, Walters added, the United States had no intention of withdrawing its naval forces from the strategic waterway.

"We intend to stick with our effective Gulf policy." Walters said, adding that the American warships will return home only after the "threat to Western interests dissipates in the area."

Condemn

Iranian Ambassador Mohammad Jaafar Mahallati bitterly complained that the Security Council did not condemn the US attack, but he did not reject the resolution.

Instead. Mahallati offered his government's co-operation in the ICAO probe and urged the United States to comply with the resolution, particularly with the call for ahiding by international air traffic regulations.

car bomb killed seven people and wounded 50 in West Beirut today in an attack apparently aimed against Syria's military presence in Lebanon, witnesses and police sources said.

They said the car, packed with 15 kg of TNT, blew up a few yards from a Syrian checkpoint and the offices of the Syrianbacked Arah Baath Party in the Syrian-controlled Cola area, site of at least four major car bombs since civil war erupted in 1975.

The blast instantly killed three Lebanese soldiers and four civilians who were driving through the district, witnesses said. A Syrian soldier told Reuters three Syrians were among those taken to hospital.

Top-level concern over the continued mass meetings in Yerevan was evident in a report hy the official Tass news agency vesterday which portrayed the Karahakh committee as a wellorganised and well-connected political movement.

Chewing tobacco more harmful than cigarettes

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22 (Reuter): Snuff and chewing tobacco expose their users 10 higher levels of dangerous nicotine than cigarettes, California researchers say.

Chewing a wad of lobacco for 30 minutes releases more healththreatening nicotine than smoking three cigareties, scientists at the University of California at San Francisco said in a study.

Dr Neal Benowitz, UCSF professor of medicine, said a study of 10 healthy volunteers showed that smokeless form of tohacco produces prolonged high levels of nicotine in the blood, while cigarette smoking causes peaks and lows.

He said that snuff, which is inhaled through the nostrils. exposes its users to more than two cigarettes worth of nicotine. Results of the study were reported in the July issue of Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics.

Seoul politicians to talk with North

SEOUL, July 22, (UPI): Leaders of South Korea's major political parties today agreed to accept an invitation from communist North Korea for a meeting between their lawmakers to discuss a pact guaranteeing neither will use arms against the other.

The conciliatory gesture by the North followed numerous rebuffs of Southern efforts to improve relations on the peninsula that was split into two nations at the end of World War II in 1945.

The overture apparently was in response to a South Korean request last week that North Korea take part in the Seoul Summer Olympics from Sept 17 to Oct 2. The North vowed to boycott the games unless it was named a co-host.

from a world of crime.

Welfare officials said that although some children got into schools hy giving false names, a red-light district address would often reveal that their mothers were prostitutes and condemn the children to a life of ignorance. Schools have now been told to accept mothers' names alone for registration. But the officials said prostitutes' children were still shunned hy schoolmates.

This leads those who get into schools to perform badly and drop out early with no qualifications and no chance for jobs. They take refuge in the sordid world into which they were born, the social workers said. Perfilyev said 50 people had been killed and more than 60 wounded in a clash between rival rebel groups inside Pakistan. He did not say if Soviet troops had been involved in any recent fighting in Afghanistan. Under peace accords signed in Geneva in April, Moscow began withdrawing its 100,000 troops from Afghanistan in May. Half

The Soviet Union has repeatedly accused Pakistan of violating the accords and has warned of grave consequences. But there are no indications that it has changed its plans for the withdrawal, which appears to be proceeding on schedule.

MANILA, July 22 (AP): About 50 Filipino civil rights lawyers marched to the presidential palace today asking that President Corazon Aquino protect them from reprisals for defending alleged communist

The march came at the end of a two-day conference during which lawyers from the United States, the Philippines, India, Pakistan, Japan and West Ger-many discussed the slayings of at least five Filipino human rights lawyers in the last eight months and the alleged harassment of many others.

Conference participants also released texts of letters from the American Bar Association to Mrs Aquino and US Secretary of State George Shuitz expressing concern about the recent killings. In the letter to Mrs Aquino, the American Association cited the

June 24 murder of lawyer Alfonso Surigao Jr., who had protested the treatment of leftists detained by the military, and the July 2 killing of Emmanuel Mendoza, a member of the Union of Lawyers and Advocates for Peoples Rights. Neither case has been solved.

"Mr Surigao is said to have believed that he was under surveillance by the military and that his car was at times followed by a car linked to the local military," the letter said.

Mrs Aquino had previous engagements and was unable to meet the lawyers, officials said.

Resolution Pahlito Sanidad, chairman of MANAMA, July 22, (AP): The US Navy cruiser Vincennes weighed anchor overnight and left port, where it had been for the past 15 days while a team of US military experts conducted an investigation into its shooting down of an Iranian jetliner on July 3.

A Navy spokesman, who asked not to be named, said the ship "returned to duty," but under standing Navy policy, refused to discuss its movements.

Ozal bids to head off opposition challenge

By John Owen-Davies

ANKARA. (Reuter): Turkish Prime Minister Turgut Gzal is aiming for early local elections in October to head off an opposition bid for power and to help heal splits in his own party. independent political sources

"We will remain the number one party in Turkey." Ozal told reporters after saying he planned to recall parliament from recess on Aug 2 to vote on a constitutional amendment to hold the poll a year before scheduled

Deniz Baykal, the SHP's new secretary-general and strongman, told Reuters earlier this month he hoped local elections would be held next year, adding he believed his party's showing then might force Ozal to call a snap general election.

Certain The Motherland, with pledged help from the right-of-centre True Path Party (TPP), is almost certain 10 win the 300 votes needed in the 450-seat parliament to amend the con-stitution, which says local polls must be held at five-year intervals. Political sources said Ozal wanted an early poli to avoid a possible damaging local poll defeat next year after introducing more austerity measures to shore up Turkey's shaky economy, and to give the revamped SHP minimal time to prepare.

The nationwide local polls for mayors and local councils in towns and cities will be crucial for Ozal, widely believed to have ambilions for the Turkish presidency when Kenan Evren ends his seven-year term in November 1989.

Eight months after sweeping back to office in a general elections with an overwhelming 292 seats in parliament, the Motherland now lies second to the SHP in opinion polls, mainly because of widespread discontent over soaring inflation.

The latest independent poll gave SHP 32 per cent support, Motherland 29 per cent and TPP 23 per cent. This compares with 28 per cent, 36 per cent and 19 per cent, respectively, in last November's general election.

Concerned Ozal told Reuters on July 12 he was not concerned with the opin-ion polls, often conducted with samples of under 200 people.

"After the (general) election we have been taking hard (economic) measures. I believe if you don't take these measures, then later you will lose much more popularity," be said.

Uprising unites Palestinians in West Bank and Gaza

BANI NAIM, Occupied West Bank, (AP): The uprising in the West Bank and Gaza Strip bas spawned a new generation of Palestinian leaders and given their people confidence to challenge Israel Army rule.

The change is evident in Bani Naim, a farming town 17 miles (27 kilometres) south of occupied Jerusalem, where the streets are blackened from tires burned in protest of Israeli occupation.

Hassan Manasara, 27, a leader of the lown's resistance, said a new community spirit has taken shape and that a senior Israeli officer encountered it when he came to Bani Naim to urge calm. Manasara said the residents confounded the Israeli by refusing to answer simple questions about their place of work. "When the offcer asked how many people are farmers. everyone raised his hand," Man-asara said. "And when he asked how many work as labourers in Israel, everyone raised his hand. "The Israeli threatened to cut

By J.T. Nguyen

UNITED NATIONS, (UPI): The UN Security Council bas been bogged down in negotiations on a resolution over the US downing of an Iranian airliner, trying to avoid a US veto that could end renewed Iranian participation in the council at a crucial time

However, Iran's unexpected acceptance of a UN ceasefire resolution in the Gulf war could unsnari a debate that began last week over condemnation of the United States, shifting the focus 10 other, less volatile obstacles.
The council cancelled a meeting Tuesday, which was to include a possible vote since consultations Monday night did not produce a compromise resolution as the world body continued its tight-rope act.

It is trying to steer between Iran's original call for a condemnation of the shooting down ot

Iran Air Flight 655 July 3, killing 290 people, and the certainty that the United States would veto such a resolution.

Faced with opposition last week, Iran agreed to let the Security Council work out a resolution acceptable to all sides. Iran only returned to participation in Council debates on the Gulf war last week after a seven-year boycott and now, with Tehran's acceptance of the ceasefire resolution, the world organization is anxious to maintain Tehran's involvement.

For its part, Iran has demonstrated an interest in improving relations with the West as its fortunes in the almost eight-yearold war have declined.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati has called the debate by the 15-nation council on the Iran Air flight a "litmus test." Iran bas accused Western members in the council of siding with Iraq in the war.

Flight 655 was downed 16 days ago and the council began to debate the issue on July 14, but it has not been able to come up with an acceptable resolution yet.
It took the council 12 days to some deft, if vague, phrasing—a hallmark of the world organisation's diplomacy. According to this formula, the council would express dismay, rather than condemning the US attack.

"Hold your head up high. Neversurrender became his signature plea. "Every day I run I'm pushing back mountains. There are no

Polls and political experts said anti-hlack bias, as well as Jack-son's radical liberal philosophy, would have doomed any ticket he was on. During the months of primary voling, he failed to make deep inroads into the white vote.
He insisted he was not running a hlack campaign against a white

THE three teenage boys who comprise the latest sensation in the world of pop are not just the stuff of schoolgirl's dreams. They are the stuff of marketing executives' dreams.

Packaged pop groups have a long history, embracing the Beatles, whom Brian Epstein transformed from mean rockers in leather jackets to lovable moptops in smits and ties, as well as the Monkees, Frankie Goes To Hollywood et al.

But the packaging of Bros, currently on their first concert tour, goes further. They are not just another success story: they are a human how-to book, an object lesson for any manager or producer looking to make a fal profit with slender resources. It goes something like this

1. How to find the group: Bros are not entirely somebody's creation. The three of them -identical twins Matt and Luke Goss, from Peckham, and Craig Logan, from Kirkcaldy - were playing as a group before they met any svengali, and they were already called Bros.

They were discovered some 18 months ago by Nicky Grabam (I'm the svengali"), an old music-business hand whose chief claim to fame, or notoriety, was having been the man behind the late-1970s easy-listening group the Nolan Sisters. After working as a talent-spotter for CBS Records, Graham took two years off to master the electronic technology that removes the need for instruments in the music of today.

A friend tipped him off about Bros. Where others saw three callow youths with long hair, Graham spotted Massive Potential. The boys music wasn't up to much, but he could see to that. On the really important things, they scored highly. Age. A group that is going to be aimed at the younger record-buyer (six to 16) has got to be young. Young does not mean 25, or even 20. The Goss brothers were 18, Logan was 17.

Looks. Must be good, but not too good. Perfection (Whitney Houston, for instance) appeals to an older market. Young fans find Luke Goss's sticking-out ears very endear-

Name. Should be punchy. Curiosity Killed The Cat doesn't roll off the tongue, and where are they now? Bros fits into buge tabloid beadlines; bandily for the more cynical journalist, it also rbymes with 2. Where to take them:

Not a record company. There is work to be done before the group will be in a position to get a good contract with a big label. First, you sign up with a manager. Graham took Bros to Tom Watkins, 37, of Massive

Watkins, says a colleague, "had a lot to do with Frankie Goes to Hollywood on the mer-chandising side." He now manages the Pet Shop Boys, who are immensely popular with Bros fans' big brothers and sisters.

Unlike many managers. Massive also does its clients marketing. Marc Evans, Bros's personal manager, says: "We don't let the record company market the record. We encompass graphics, design everything.

Everything means, above all: An image. Bros are "a very visual band," Marc Evans says. But when they started out. 'they weren't really sure of what clothes they liked. We kind of pointed them in the right direction."

That meant keeping things simple. The look had to be easy for the fans to copy. Bros now bave sbort, well-oiled hair and earrings; like Madonus, they wear ordinary clothes - Levi's 501 jeans, white T-shirts, leather jackets - with distinctive accessories, like James Dean buckles on their belts and playing cards, watches and Grolsch lager bottle-tops tucked into their sboes. Graham, meanwhile, came up with: A sound. Bros's records are very tiny, very mechanical— very 1988. There is, however, no denying that Matt Goss can sing.

Bros: not just another success story

The writing credit goes, mysteriously, to "The Brothers".
The gullible customer assumes that this means the twins. Massive Management, if asked, say it's Nicky Grabam and the three boys, with Tom Watkins doing some of the words.

3. How to get into the charts: First, hire a "plugger" to lobby radio and television to give the group exposure. Most bands are happy with the record-company pluggers; Bros use an independent -Neil Ferris, of Ferret & Span-ner. He could not get Radio One interested in the first single, "I Owe You Nothing", and it peaked around Number 75 in the chart. (It is now Number One, baving been re-released in the wake of the other hits.) But he did get Bros on the Boxing Day edition of "Going Live", the Saturday morning children's television show, with the next single, "When Will I Be Famous?" The answer to the question was any day now. Ferris plugged away so hard that the record was banned by Radio One for a fortnight, but it went to Number Two. Brosmania was under way.

4. How to make it really big:

One hit single doesn't make a career, or much money. It is but one of a series of landmarks, achieved in a variety of ways. Record packaging. Issue a record in two different mixes, or three oifferent sleeves: the bard-core fan will want them

Television. You must be on it; you must not be on it all the time (Curiousity Killed The Cat were "very lax" about this, Marc Evans says). If possible, get a programme to yourself:
"Bros — The Story So Far"
went out nationwide on ITV just as the group's album "Push" appeared.

The Press. It is vital to be on good terms with Smash Hits, the teenagers' favourite music paper. Bros have appeared in it more than anyone else in living memory ("Brilliant 8-Page Pull-Oui BROS Booklei!") The tabloid newspapers follow where Smash Hits leads. Quality newspapers are not

Signing sessions. Good for whipping up hysteria among tabloid editors. A record shop is a confined space. It doesn't take many screaming schoolgirls to cause CHAOS IN OXFORD ST AS BROS FANS GO WILD.

Concerts: Necessary to establish what Marc Evans calls "musical credibility"? Sponsorship. Concert tours mean high costs. Bros's tour is sponsored by Pepsi-Cola, a seal of corporate approval previously granted only to mucb bigger stars (Jackson, Attitude to fans. Must be positive. The one thing fans like more than pelvic thrusts, indepth interviews and free pos-ters is to be told that the group love them. Matt. the mummy's boy lead singer, is especially strong on this. Fan identification, In 1988

pop fans like to identify with their heroes as well as worship them. They like it when Smash Hits follows Bros on their first trip to America ("Bros, it must besaid, are fantastically excited today"), or when Matt says his hero is Micbael Jackson. 5. How to avoid burn-out:

When you become this successful this quickly, there is no known method. But if anyone is going to crack it, it will proba-bly be Bros.

Hallucinations of godliness

By Ed Vullaimy

THIS is certainly not another 1960s book. It is a story about the imagination unleashed; and about how the taking of little tablets or the dropping of jelly onto sugarlumps became something akin to to a holy rite, and how the ensuing psychedelic hallucinations came to be confused in earnest with godliness.

LSD itself first appeared just before five o'clock on Monday April 19th, 1943, in Basle, Switzerland, when Albert Hoffman, an employee of the Sandoz pharmaceutical company. completed some experiments with a fungus called Claviceps Purpurea. He synthesised down the 25th compound of an acid series he had developed from the mushroom — the lysergic acid series; he dropped two millionths of a gram of it into a glass of water and drank it down. As he rode home on his hicycle, the landscape around him exploded.

Within 18 years of Hoffman's experiment, LSD was in use at the Massachusetts Medical Health Centre, as a mimic of madness. Before long. the English psychiatrist Humphrey Osmond - whn was using mescalin on mental patients in Canada — invented the term "psychedelic", hut by nnw the gnalpots had been moved this was not psychotherapy any more, for Osmond had teamed up with two men with different ideas, an English mystical writer living in Los Angeles called Aldous Huxley. and a Mr Al Huhbard, a Catholic visionary and President of the Uranium Corporation of Vancouver. It was the latter who requested from Sandoz forty-three cases of LSD, which Sandoz duly supplied from Switzerland.

After dropping — or dis-tribution — a sizeable quantity of the shipment, the triad of Huxley-Osmond-Huhbard toured the USA, seeking to interest leading intellectuals and political figures in the Other World to which they had been admitted through "the door in the wall" of the mind—they wanted LSD to change everything. A five-year LSD therapy clinic was established in Los Angeles with Sandoz's blessing, and others quickly followed. A notice went up in the Cathedral of the Holy Rosary in Vancouver beseecbing Our Holy Mother the Virgin to "help all who call on her to understand the psy-

But the first synthetic LSD was manufactured with rather different motives in mind, by the CIA. Inspired hy experiments carried out at Dachau by the SS-Hauptstur-mfuhrer in its search for mindcontrol drugs, the OSS - later the CIA - began an extraordinary mind-control prog-ramme called MK-Ultra, for which it contacted Sandoz and ordered up the company's entire supply of LSD. The progress of this lunatic plan has been documented elsewhere. hut Stevens' account is full of irony and annecdote: the "casehardened spooks who would break down crying or go all gooey about the brotherhood test LSD on their clients. Soon, we hit more familiar ground: Kerouac, Burroughs, Ginsberg ... and eventually Dr Tim Leary and the Harvard Project. Leary began with a psychological method — hles-sed by Harvard — which entailed transforming the mind through psilocyhin. With LSD he changed tack, ending up with the League for Spiritual of man," or Operation Midnight Climax, in which the CIA

commandeered a San Francisco hrothel so the girls could

Discovery and Turn On, Tune In. Drop Out. But where Huxley had wanted to "turn on the Best and the Brightest," Leary wanted a popular cultural revolution based on LSD.

Science and psychology retreated as acid evangelism took over. Huxley died on the same day as JFK, except that Huxley was administered progressive doses of LSD as be left this life, and his wife Laura was whispering "light and free you lel go darling, forward and up, toward the light" as Huxley took his leave.

Stevens' book remains celebratory of the LSD promise for a little longer yet — he is, with reservations, an admirer of Leary. Enter the enchanting figure of Ken Kesey, the Pranksters and their Kool-Aid Acid Test. Enter the Grateful Dead, and all those sincere or intellectually adventurous people hringing about an acid culture alongside the losers and the self-indulgent in Frisco. Enter the indefatigable Tim Scully, who took LSD on to "the next step" - the nightmarisb STP with all the bad trips, the bospital waiting rooms and the fall from whatever height it was that Huxley, Leary and Co. had climbed. When the LSD people did fall, it wasn't necessarily medical - most of them didn't go the slightest bit made - it was just that there wasn't another Summer of Love there to catch them.

There is no question that LSD underwrites the post-war American pageant in the same way that opium underwrote the Romantic rebellion of the 19th century. Stevens seems to want to suggest an apparent contradiction: that the uncontrollable must be controlled. And this is a book that shows how a legitimate, even noble, idea went wrong because it did not take care.

Reincarnation Although each Dalai Lama is believed to be a reincarnation of the first, they vary enor-mously. Only the fifth and the 13th were known as "The Great". This portrait, first published in 1946, shows why: it reveals a humorous, gentle man wielding enormous power conscientously and humbly for the good of his people and Tibetan Buddhism.

The book is rich with descriptions of the country (the highest on earth, and almost tree-less), the ceremonies and traditions, and the extreme cold (enjoyed hy Tibetans for its ability to clear the mind).

In Tibet it is punishable to criticise the government hut singing is sacred; so women labourers make up songs and pass along rumours and gossip that way. Referring to the sacking of a cabinet minister, they nutrition, diabetes, anaemia, thyroid problems, depression and medications. QUESTION: What is leukaemia? Does everyone who gets this disease die?

ANSWER: Leukaemia is a malignant disorder of the bone marrow, lymph nodes and spleen which causes these blood-forming tissues to flood the bloodstream with abnormal and immature blood cells. Unlike normal red blood cells (which prevent anaemia) and disk-like platelets (which help blood to clot), these immature cells cannot function

As the disorder goes, normal infectionfighting white blood cells are replaced with the abnormal ones, leaving the body open to a kind of oxygen starvation in the cells (anaemia) and bruising and hleeding because there aren't enough platelets.

The two types of leukaemia are lymphocytic, involving the cells of the lymph nodes and spleen, and myelocytic, which affects the cells formed in the bone marrow. It can grow quickly as in childhood leukaemia or progress more slowly in adulth-

Early signs include easy bruising, bleeding without clotting, high fever, constant weakness or fatigue, bone and joint pain and recurring infections. Treatment begins in a medical setting specialising in leukaemia treatment in order to ensure and maintain the patient's remission or arrest of the disorder. This treatment primarily includes chemotherapy - combinations chosen from some 40 drugs which act to kill or block the leukaemia cells, as well as supportive therapy which shields the patient from infections during the course of

The exact cause of the disease is still unknown, but bere is the good news. Death is no longer mevitable. Great strides have been made to ensure long-term survival. Bone marrow transplants and blood transfusions are only two of the approaches responsible for statistics showing 60 per cent of all young victims thriving five years and more after initial diagnosis. SHAW was one of the greatest letter-writers in the English language, almost on a level with Byron, and here is the final volume of the definitive edition. Some will judge the editing heavy-banded, for Mr Laurence, a Canadian tells us who Mr Micawber, Disraeli and Mrs Simpson were, for example. But I often found his notes illuminating and he knows everything about his weird subject.

Shaw was born during the Crimean War, and was already 70 when this collection of 750 letters, covering his last quarters century, begins. They are thus the epistles of a long twilight. Not that there is any falling off: one of the most brilliant, concerning the peculiar money-habits of Elgar, was written to Sir John Beith when Shaw was 92. Moreover, since he had known almost everyone, and felt he could lay down the law on anything, there is something in this vast tome for all tastes. Weight apart, it is the perfect takeaway book this summer.

The least interesting group (to my mind) concern spelling, punctuation, pronunciation and shorthand, on which Shaw held well-informed hut cranky views. (He wrote most of his letters in shorthand for his secretary to type). Next come many letters dealing with his theatre royalties and literary copyrights. Like Byron, Shaw could make even business letters compulsively readable, but clearly there is a limit to what we want to know about his dealings with his tiresome German translator.

Then there is a large group on the publication of his correspondence with Ellen Terry and Mrs Patrick Campbell and his involvement with the Oscar Wildesaga. Again, the appeal is limited though for some, no doubt, compulsive. They illustrate Shaw's kindness, generosity ( a great feature of this book, cheques flying about in all directions) and his evident liking for difficult women.

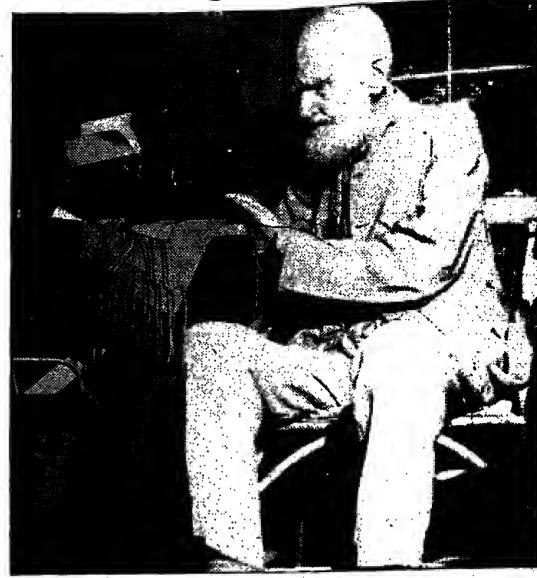

These included his wife Charlotte, said to have been very bad-tempered (she was accident-prone and always humping herself), Lady Astor, who insisted on washing his hair and beard in Lux, and Vir-ginia Woolf, with whom he had a lovey-dovey exchange the year before ber suicide, But, he could handle difficult men too: his letters to Lord Alfred Douglas are among the most striking in this collection.

Naturally the largest bunch concern the staging of his plays, and here his knowledge, vast make incomparable reading. As a starter, I recommend the reader to turn to page 579, where be instructs Robert Donat, young but already world-famous, on how the star of a play should make his first appearance:

Never make your entry into a crowd, and form merely one of it. The star must always be a figure apart. When you enter in the first act, everyone must be sitting down.

There are many such gems dotted about. Though vain, Shaw was not self-centred and he was always thinking about the audience: every playwright of today, with the exception of Tom Stoppard and Harold Pin-ter, could benefit from this volume, and even they might learn something.

On matters he knew about, Shaw wrote not only with authority hut what can only be des-cribed as scintillating commonsense. There is, for instance, a superh letter to Felix Topolski on dust-jackets. The artist wanted to draw Shaw but he vetoed

People see the cover of a book on a shop counter for nothing. It makes no money for the author or publisher unless it tempts people to buy the book. A drawing of a ridiculous old man may amuse them; but it will not suggest that the book is worth reading: on the contrary . So draw us something attractive, and keep me out of it.

Shaw was particularly good on music, and in this volume he dictates to such celebrities as Arthur Bliss, Elgar, Harriet Cohen and Adrian Boult. There is a magnificent letter (to the co-editor of Paderewski's memoirs) on the evolution of nianistic techniques, and another on rare varieties of Victorian brass-instruments. Shaw never hesitated to offer advice outside his sphere too often with devastating effect. His letter to Kingsley Martin, who was wailing despondently after the 1942 Far East disasters, is a classic statement of how an editor should respond to bad news. He also instructed Augustus Joho on how to paint a portrait. This occurred when Field Marshal Montgomery, then at the height of his fame and due to be painted by John, requested that Shaw be present to amuse him during the sittings. Shaw commenting to John: "Fancy a soldier being intelligent enough to want to be painted by you and to talk to me!" At various times, Shaw told Keynes about economics, Churchill about leading the opposition, Nehru about running India and the BBC about broadcasting (but then we all do that). All these letters contain some sense, but the quotient is smallest when he turns to politics, about which he felt strongest and though he had the most to teach the world. Like most intellectuals, he worshipped power and admired the powerful. He backed all the dictators. It would be interesting to see a performance of Geneva, in which characters based on Hitler, Mussolini and Franco make sympathetic appearance. Unfortunately it contains a hostile portrait of a few, and would probably be regarded as insufferable today.

References to Jews in these letters lift the lid on a moral vacuum in his mind. He wrote to Beatrice Webb, a propos of we ought to tackle the Jewish question by admitting the right of states to make cugenic experiments by weeding out any strains that they think undesirable, but insisting that they should do it as humanely as they can afford to."

He was personally insensitive too, insisting to an Australian Jewish friend that the, Anschluss was just, and boasting that his Evening Standard article saying so — "And so — Heil Hitler! by George Bernard Shaw" -- had been "placar-ded" all over London "in the biggest capitals." Hitler was Germany's "greatest statesman". His speech of January 1939 (one of the most sinister) was 'a wonderful performance". As late as October

1942 Shaw was reading Mein Kampf "attentively", telling Nancy Astor: "[Hitler] is the greatest living Tory ... Your party should capture him and keep him as a teacher and leader while checkmating his

Shaw had no reservations about "phobias" when praising Stalin. There is much material here on his notorious visit to Russia in 1931 during the collectivisation campaign, when Stalin was murdering or starving to death millions. The methods used to hoodwisk Shaw and others are described in Robert Conquest's The Harvest of Sorrow, But as late as 1941, when the facts were well known in Bugain. Shaw still insisted in a lettlet to H.G. Wells, that it was precisely collectivisation, and its "success", which "rank [Stalin] as the greatest living statesman." He seems to have remained a fulsome apologist for Stalin, and a Communist (by his own definition) until the end.

Shaw's last years, when the death of his wife released him into frisky bachelorhood again, were mixed. He kept his faculties, as these letters show. But like other world-famous intellectuals - Tolstoy, Sartre, Russell, for instance — he became the target for vultures. These pages make painful reading and suggest the title for a play. The Darkest Days of Bernard Shaw. But it would take an lbsen to write it, for at this point in the book the laughs run

Development projects provide 'buoyant market for foreign firms'

Return of confidence will reactivate trade cycle

IRAN'S acceptance of UN Security Council resolution 598, which envisages a settlement in its 8-year-old war with Iraq, has created a buoyant atmosphere among Gulf economists, financiers and officials about husiness prospects in their region.

in one measure or another, they saw the possible ending of hostilities as creating a wave of confidence that would lead to a boom in business and trade, a return of petrodollar capital to the area and a scramble by multinational companies for infrastructure contracts.

The return of confidence will reactivate the trade cycle in the short run and prompt hesitant private sector and shareholding companies to reconsider their investment policies and invest money in new ventures which Taqy predicted the emergence of "a rich and extensive market" in the Gulf particularly if littoral states and industrialised countries entered into arrangements to finance the economic and social infrastructure and rehabilitation projects in Iraq and Iran.

"Iraq, Iran, Saudi Arahia and Kuwait constitute a big rich market." he said.

"The development projects in the area provide a huoyant market for foreign companies, particularly contractors," he

Tagy predicted the return of regional capital invested in industrialised countries once peace settled, because "there will be adequate investment outlets in a stable climate."

Kuwait in particular has been hard-hit by the war as the hostilities dragged on. Its proximity to the warfront, so far the bane of Kuwait, could turn into a boon

Being the closest to the two belligerents it is expected to strive and easily place itself as the staging-point for the international contractors who will want to capitalise on the massive reconstruction projects that Iraq and Iran should launch.

Kuwait's flourishing re-export transit trade with Iraq and Iran has been reduced to particularly nil, as it tried to cope with other Gulf littoral states with a regionwide recession brought about by the war and its offshoots, and the simultaneously dropping oil prices on world markets.

Additionally, Kuwait has been afflicted by the crash of its parallel stock exchange in the summer of 1982, and is until now trying to settle an outstanding $96 hillion in post-dated checks. Prices

Jassem Al Saadoun, a prominent Kuwaiti economist who heads the Al Shall Consultancy Bureau, said he believed that stock prices will rise after the cease-fire to a certain level then retreat before rising again to new levels. "Then they will settle there with selective dealings dominating the stock market," he said.

* Peace prospects would help stabilise oil prices: envoy

WASHINGTON, July 22, (KUNA): Iraq's ambassador to the US predicted yesterday that peace between Iran and Iraq would lead to "stability in oil pricing and fair sharing of oil markets" by both countries, which are members of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

In an interview with the Washington Post, Ambassador Abdul Amir Ali Al Anbari said the war has made it "difficult for OPEC to negotiate sensible pricing" because of Iran's suspicions that Saudi Arabia was conspiring against Tehran. The envoy said that co-operation between Iran and Iraq would help stabil-ise oil prices, but would not necessarily increase them.

UN Secretary-General Javier Pereze de Cuellar announced in York that he was immediately dispatching teams to Iran and Iraq to begin discussing details of the ceasefire in the nearly eight-year-old war. The UN chief said he hoped the teams would complete their mitial work within a week, after which he agreement. Iraq agreed to the ceasefire a year ago when it was passed by the UN.

The ambassador also said that if the war ends, "a new horizon will open up in US-Iraq cooperation in all spheres." He said the war bas "constrained" US-Iraqi relations because of US efforts to remain neutral. During the years of Shah, Iran was America's principal ally in the Arabian Gulf. Now, after cight years of bitter relations with the Ayatollah's revolutionary government and the embarrassment of the Iran-Contra scandal, the administration is waiting for Tehran to designate an authorised official to open a dialogue with Washington, a senior official told the paper, adding that Tehran hasn't yet taken that step.

India likely to buy oil from Nigeria

NEW DELHI, July 22: The government is considering purchase of oil from Nigeria against outstanding export dues, according to Economic Times.

Huge amounts due to Indian exporters are locked up in Nigeria because of that country's acute foreign exchange constraints. Nigerian buyers of Indian goods have failed to make payments even for exports undertaken before 1984.

The government has already entered into a deal with Lihya for purchase of oil against similar outstanding payments.
In view of the difficulties being faced by the exporters, the Federation of Indian Export Organisations (FIEO) had urged the Commerce Ministry to explore the possibility of entering into a deal with Nigeria on similar lines.

The Commerce Ministry has informed the federation that the department of economic affairs in the Finance Ministry is working out a strategy to expedite the repatriation of the blocked

The Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) had earlier formulated a scheme to reconcile exporters' claims against similar returns to pending payments for the Nigerian banks and then to pay them in instalments with interest as due from April I, 1984, at the rate of LIBOR, plus one per cent, up to June 1990.

Outflow of Gulf funds on the decline

OPEC's foreign assets total $473b, says study

MANAMA, July 22, (KUNA): OPEC countries have accumulated foreign assets estimated at around $473 billion. from 1973 to 1987, with the GCC countries alone having accounted for around 75 per cent of this amount or $355 billion, according to an economic report released here.

The Gulf economic and financial report published by the Manama-based Gulf International Bank said Gulf investors have been quite active in the international markets since the early oil-boom years.

Many high net-worth individuals, financial and trading institutions as well as government bodies have sizeable overseas investments ranging from bank deposits and fixed income securities to shares, real estate and direct investments in businesses abroad. Slowdown

But with the economic slowdown of the past few years, the outflow of Gulf funds into the international capital markets has been on the decline...

'The report added that this downward trend obscures the fact that established investors continue to recycle their wealth abroad by selling one asset and

Besides, investment opportunities in the domestic markets, even though witnessing some improvements recently, still lack depth and diversity.

After investing in their own business and apart from limited outlets available in local stocks and traditional real estate channels, the opportunities to invest within the region remain limited, the report said, adding that there are still ample surplus funds with the region's private sector seekmg investments abroad.

The study said there are three broad groups of Gulf private investors; institutions, the high net-worth individuals and the less wealthy investors.

The institutional investors include commercial banks, investment, finance and insurance companies, utilities and manufacturing companies enjoying substantial liquidity.

income

These institutions together with the high-net worth individuals have been active participants in the international markets and have been targetted by the large financial institutions worldwide, providing them with such services as private banking, portfolio management, direct investment in businesses abroad. real estate and other specific ven-

But a third category of Gulf investors, less well known, are the high to middle income professional and less wealthy individuals who are concerned with preserving wealth and maximising returns.

Increasingly looking for alterinternational markets, the financial sophistication of this group of investors has been on the rise, the study noted.

Not so many years ago, only few individuals ventured beyond investing in interest bearing bank deposits, and many even used to keep large sums of money on call without accepting interest. With changing investment goals, various banks have designed unit trusts catering for the investment needs of the region's less wealthy individuals.

Though each group has different investment goals and risk return profiles, they all share many common features, the study said, adding that the average Gulf investor tends to be conservative rather than speculative.

According to the study, the Gulf investor feels more comfortable with his money invested in a familiar environment, the US and Europe being more favourable than Japan, and in products that he understands, direct investment in real estate than acquisition of corporate husinesses, precious metals rather than commodities and bonds more than stocks.

Gulf investors also have a clear preference for anonymity and liquidity, reflecting their general mercantile attitude towards realising quick profits.

Besides, they have not been sufficiently exposed to equity investments in their domestic capital markets which are sull in the early stages of development. Approach

They normally follow a connational investments, progressing from gold and real estate to bank deposits and money market instruments then to currencies and bonds and at a later stage to stocks and other equities.

The report indicated that investment in commodities, newly developed financial instruments and other non-conventional channels are limited to the sophisticated minority.

A main feature of Gulf investors has been a strong preference for dollar dominated assets. During the period 1979-1985, when the dollar was riding high on the world exchange mrkets, the hulk of Gulf overseas investment, whether in bonds, stocks, bank deposits, asset acquisition or real estate, was directed mainly to the US. However, in the past few years, there has been a clear trend to diversify towards German, Japanese, British and other European markets. The report said Gulf direct investment ahroad has tended to focus on well established profitable businesses with known brand ### names that command sizeable portion of their home market. Investment

It added that the industries in which there has been significant Gulf direct investment include financial institutions, department stores, luxury goods, mining, oil and gas, and transporta-

In the real estate sector, Gulf direct investment concentrated on hotels, shopping centres, luxury residential projects and major commercial buildings. As in the corporate sector, the report said, the Arab investor opted mostly for prime property at the conservative rather than the speculative end of the market.

The study said Gulf investments in gold and other precious metals had dropped considerably in the last few years reflecting an increasing sophistication among investors.

It pointed out that Gulf gold bar holdings had dropped by 50 per cent to 5.5 tons last year against 11.7 tons in 1986.

The report said with the world economy continuing to show convincing evidence of having shaken off most, if not all, the repercussions of the October 1987 stock market crash, the forward momentum of economic activity this year is likely to carry on into 1989.

This is especially true in the US where annualised real economic growth in first quarter this year was a robust 3.6 per cent, And growth in the remaining part of this year is expected to moderate a little bit with an overall growth of 3 per cent projected for 1989.

But the firm undertone of the dollar and the higher US interest rates will dampen economic prospects in 1989 with an average growth of around 2 per cent forecast for next year.

Slow Domestic demand growth in Europe and Japan is also expected to slow somewhat this year, with GNP recording growth of 2.5 per cent and 4.25 per cent, respectively.

Concluding, the study recommended international diversification because it dampens overall portfolio volatility. Although individual foreign markcts may at times be more volatile than US markets, the correlation between US and foreign markets is low as it is between individual foreign markets. "In an internationally-diversified portfolio, therefore, trends in one market may be offset by contrasting trends in another, the study said.

Gulf oil if war ends SAN FRANCISCO, July 22, (Reuter): An end to the Iran-Iraq

war would mean an additional two to three million barrels of oil a campaign. The energy secretary said that both Iran and Iraq have huge war debts and, with an end to the fighting, they will step up oil production to rebuild their economics. He said both Middle East going to see excess oil production, in my estimation. It may not happen in the short run, but you're going to see it in the long run. More oil in the world market will force prices down and pose problems for the US oil industry, he said. "It raises the issue of energy for this election and it's going to mean the US government in coming years is going to have to deal with the viability of the US oil and gas industry on a very critical level," he said. Herrington said the domestic oil industry needs to survive for the good of the national security. "It means we're going to have to look at things like a return to the depletion allowance, deregulation of natural gas, change in the tax code," he said.

TEHRAN, July 22, (OPECNA): Iran and Romanin plan to sign a new industrial and commercial co-operation agreement nt the end of their joint economic commission meeting currently being held in Bucharest. Iran's oil exports to Romania is among the topics on the agenda of the meeting which opened on Monday. The accord is expected to be signed by Iranian Minister of Plan and Budget Masud Roghani Zanjani who has already left here for Bucharest. Zanjani will also deliver a message from Iranian President Ali Khamenei to Romanian President Nicolae

The Iranian delegation to the meeting of the commission is led by Deputy Minister of Plan and Budget Mehdi Mirmoezi and includes representatives from the ministries of commerce, industries, agriculture, foreign affairs, mines and metal and the central bank. Iran and Romania already co-operate in the manufacturing of tractors. Trade relations between the two countries during the 1979-85 period amounted to more than $700 million annually.

Expenditure and revenue in the budget, issued in a presidential law, each total 51.545 billion Syrian pounds ($4.58 billion), he said. Mahayni said the budget law terminated a special decree which had allowed provisional monthly government spending based on 1/12 of last year's budget. His ministry

The company achieved record turnover of Rs 8.03 billion ($574 million) in the year ended March 31 against Rs 6.62 billion $473 million) in 1986-87, and announced record pretax profits of Rs 264 million ($18.9 million) after Rs102 million ($7.3 million) the

But Krishnamurty said Suzuki had promised to reinvest its dividend revenue of Rs10.2 million ($730,000) rather than repatriating it to Japan.

Maruti's output is still small hy world standards, with sales last year of 94,033 vehicles, scheduled to rise to 105,000 in the current year. But a 1000-cc three-hox

In India the basic 800cc model sells for Rs 77,000 ($5,500), of which Krishnamurty said 13,000 ($930) was accounted for by excise duty and 12,300 ($880) by customs duty on the Japanese components.

This leaves a base export price of $3,700, making the car an attractive proposition against its European competitors.

Foreign investment shows big rise

SEOUL, South Korea, July 22, (API: Foreign equity investment in South Korea between January and June rose to $640 million, up 51 per cent from $424 million in the same six-month period last vear, the Finance Ministry reported today.
Officials said the tally on an

The marked rise in foreign investment bere was attributed to the government's easing of controls on foreigners' investment and favourable business prospects in this country.

Direct foreign investment in the manufacturing sector was listed at $306 million.

an investment group led by Shamrock had acquired 4.93 million shares of Polaroid, which has been the subject of takeover rumours for months. The group said it proposed to acquire all Polaroid shares at $40 each in a negotiated merger. The bid would value Polaroid at around $2.48 billion. Polaroid stock traded today at $36, up $2 on the day. Shamrock said it was prepared to increase its takeover bid if Polaroid could show it was worth

Polaroid, based in Cambridge, Massachusetts, said it had no comment on Shamrock's purchase of Polaroid shares. Shamrock Holdings, the group that sparked a turnaround at Walt Disney Company, is headed by Roy Disney, the nephew of Walt Disney and vice-chairman of the Disney entertainment conglomerate. Shamrock is a family enterprise that Roy Disney founded a decade ago. Disney worked for his uncle's company for many years in various capacities and was a major shareholder. He quit Disney in disgust in 1984 after the company had fallen into decline since the founder's death

Later, Roy Disney joined with the Bass Brothers in installing new management headed by Mike Eisner that sparked a dramatic comeback that produced a series of hit films and sent Disney company profits in 1966.

Brazil plans to resume borrowing in bond markets

FRANKFURT, West Germany, July 22, (AP): Brazil, the developing world's biggest debtor, plans to resume borrowing in the international bond markets, the Brazilian finance minister said yesterday. The last time Brazil launched a bond in international markets was in 1980. Finance Minister Mailson Ferreira da Nobrega told reporters that Brazil was interested primarily in testing the West German and Japanese bond markets with a modest initial issue next year. The decision to look into bond issues comes as possibilities for syndicated loans have become limited, he said. Nobrega said Brazil would aim at eventually achieving annual borrowings of between $1 billion and $2 billion once the markets gets reacquainted with Brazil as n borrower.
"We are carrying out sound policies and moving in the right direction (that) ... makes sense," Nobrega said. "If you do the right things, people tend to believe in you." He said be had mentioned the possibility of a bond issue to West German bankers in Frankfurst and they arread with his agreement that band issues in Frankfurt and they agreed with his assessment that bond issues were the hest way to go in the future. But syndicate managers in Frankfurt were privately sceptical. "Looking at Brazil's situation nt present, they can barely deal with debt that they have." said one syndication expert at a major West German bank, "If they get into the bond market, it's like getting n new credit card with a new (credit) limit — they can spend more, but can't really afford it," said the expert, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

India to set up industrial technology data bank

NEW DELHI, July 22, (KUNA): India will set up a national industrial technology data bank nt an estimated cost of Rs 70 million. The bank will collect, analyse and disseminate knowledge of technical, economic and commercial aspects of specified industrial technologies, according to industry ministry sources.

The project will be implemented in a phased manner over n period of five years. As part of its efforts to see that the country kent pace of five years. As part of its efforts to see that the country kept pace with rapid technologies in developed nations, the government also proposes to establish a lechnology development fund, the sources said. The objective of the proposed fund will be commercialisation of technology which has already been developed successfully upto laboratory stage in the country. The sources said the other aims include sponsoring and funding of specific research and development projects of national or industry-wise importance, provision of venture capital for setting up industries on the basis of indigenously developed technology and upscaling of technology.

Contract signed with Amoco for offshore exploration

NEW DELHI, July 22, (AP): Amoco India Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of the American Amoco Oil Corporation, signed a contract today allowing it to explore for oil off India's eastern coast, the government announced. The agreement was the last in a series signed with international oil companies since December in India's bid to expand exploration in offshore areas. Other successful bidders were the US-based Chevron and Texaco, with a joint bid with International Petroleum Corp. of Canada, BHP Petroleum of Australia, and Royal Dutch Shell of the Netherlands. The contract signed today opens an area of 1,500 square kilometres (600 square miles) for exploration by Amoco off the coast of Andhra Pradesh. The agreement was signed by Prabir Sengupta, joint secretary in the Petroleum Ministry; I.W. Herrick, vice-president of Amoco, and P.K. Chandra of Indianrun Oil and Natural Gas Commission. As with the other contracts, Amoco can cancel the agreement if no oil is found. If oil is discovered, it must share petroleum with the Indian government after recovering exploration and development costs. The value of the contracts has not been made public.

In all, 121,000 square kilometres (48,400 square miles) of offshore territory was opened to the foreign companies for exploration. India produces about 30 million tous of crude oil a year. But demand has outpaced production, and imports are averaging at least 17 million tons a year.

Herrington sees more

day flowing into the world market within a year or two, US Energy Secretary John Herrington said yesterday. Speaking at a news conference, Herrington said an end to the war would make US energy policy an important issue in this year's presidential countries have only one thing to sell to the world - oil. "So you're I'm talking one year, two years if the war ends," Herrington said.

Plan to sign trade pact

DAMASCUS, July 22, (Reuter): President Hafez AI Assad has

previous months to finance government investment projects and had already issued decrees to distribute the new-allocations to ministries, institutions and companies. State assembly deputies approved the budget on Tuesday and stressed that its figures should be translated into real action.

London Stock Market Report

.K. SHARES STEADY AROVE MORNING LOUS IN LATE TRADE LONDON, JULY 22, REUTER - SHARE PRICES WERE STEADT AT JUST ABOVE THE DAY'S HIDMORNING LOWS BUT CHEALERS SAID VOLUME HAD OROPPED TO A TRICKLE AHEAD OF THE WEEKEND. PRICES WERE MARKED DOWN IN EARLY BUSINESS FOLLOWING DECLINES IN BOTH THE TOKYO AND NEW YORK MARKETS OVERNIGHT AND EXTENDED THEIR LOSSES IN THE MORHING SESSION.

OFALERS SAID SOME PROGRAMME SELLING WAS TRIGGERED BY A FALL IN FTSE INDEX FUTURES WHILE GOVERNMENT BOND DEALERS SAID THEY DETECTED SOME SWITCHING OUT OF EQUITIES INTO INDEX-LINKED STOCK. BY 1430 GHT THE FTSE 100 STOOD 16.4 POINTS LOWER AT 1,848 HAVING REACHED A LOW OF 1,845.9 AT 0958 GHT.

AFTER A HIGH OF 420P REACHED ON CONTINUING BID SPECULATION, CADBURY SHARES FELL BACK TO STAND JUST 5P NIGHER AT 391 AFTER IT SIGNED A FRANCHISING AGREEMENT WITH HERSHET FOODS CORP. HERSHEY WILL BUT THE OPERATING ASSETS OF CADRIDY'S U.S. CONFECTIONARY BUSINESS AND WILL MANUFACTURE CADBURY BRANDS IN

THE U.S. UNDER LICENSE. DEALERS SAIO THE MARKET'S FIRST REACTION TO THE DEAL, WHICH WILL COST HERSHEY 270 MLN DLRS PLUS THE ASSUMPTION OF 30 MLH DLRS OF DEBT, WAS THAT IT MADE A TAKEOVER OF CADBURT LESS LIKELT AS HERSHEY WAS ONE OF THE MAIN CANDIDATES TO MAKE AN OFFER.

London Gold

LONDON, JULY 22, REUTER - GOLD BULLION EDGED ABOVE THE DAT'S LOWS BY THE CLOSE TO STAND AT 442.50/443.00 DLRS AN OUNCE, BUT WAS STILL DOWN 3.50 DLRS FROM THURSDAT'S CLOSE. SILVER LED THE OTHER PRECIOUS METALS DOWN ON LONG LIGUIDATION AND PROFIT TAKING, BUT THEN STEADLED ON LIGHT BUYING

AT THE CLOSE TO FINISH AT 771/773 CENTS AN OUNCE, COMPARED WITH A LOW OF 754/756 AND A PREVIOUS CLOSE OF 786/788. THURSDAT'S NEWS THAT THE PERUVIAH CENTRAL BANK WAS TO BUY SILVER FROM STATE-CHNED MINES AT ABOVE MARKET LEVELS BUOYED SILVER INITIALLY BUT UNCERTAINTY OVER THE MOVE AND EARLY FALLS IN THE U.S. SAW THE METAL SLIP, DEALERS SAID.

London Money Market

LONDON, JULY 22, REUTER - MONEY MARKET INTEREST RATES WERE LITTLE CHANGED TOWARD THE CLOSE BUT THE MARKET REMAINED VERY MERVOUS AHEAD OF NEXT WEEK'S CRUCIAL BRITISH TRADE FIGURES.
DEALERS STILL BELIEVE NIGHER INTEREST RATES ARE ALMOST INEVITABLE IF INFLATION IS TO BE EFFECTIVELT CURTAILED. BUT STERLING'S STRONG REVIVAL HAS MADE THEN WONDER IF THE GOVERNMENT IS PREPARED TO RAISE RATES AND RISK SENDING THE POUND TO LEVELS WHICH COULD DAMAGE THE COMPETITIVENESS OF BRITISH INDUSTRY. ONE DEALER SAIO, "PEOPLE ARE REALLY BEHUSED BY IT ALL, BUT I THINK A RISE HAS STILL GOT TO BE ON THE CARDS, AND ESPECIALLY SO IF THE TRADE FIGURES GIVE STERLING A KICKING."

Wall Street Market Report

NEW YORK, July 22, (Reuter): Wall Street stocks continued to show small losses. With trading light, the market was showing little reaction to a slightly lower than expected rise In consumer prices and Iraq's statement that it had launched an offensive against Iran

The Dow 30 was off four points at 2083 and declining issues led gainers by two-to-

Analysts said the small rise in June consumer prices was not likely to change existing perceptions of accelerating inflation.

New coffee pact in doubt ahead of London talks

LONDON, July 22, (Reuler): Wide differences beset coffee producing and importing nations who resume talks bere next week on a new accord to stabilise prices in an over-supplied market. . A current international coffee organisation agreement expires in September, 1989. It sets export quotas and is the only such producer-consumer commodity pact still working.

A tin pact collapsed when its buffer stock manager ran out of money in 1985. A cocon pact also faces cash problems. ICO delegates today saw no signs that the 74 coffee producer and consumer nations had narrowed the differences which resulted in stalemate at an opening round of talks last month. *Consumers say they will bring more specific ideas and we will study them, but I am not aware of proposals from producers," said Nestoer Osorio, Colombia's ICO

Most ICO consumer nations want a completely new agreement producers favour revision of the present pact. Agreement think the present agreement can be made to work improvements and modifications and this could satisfy the demands consumers have expressed," said Lindenberg Sette, ICO ambassador of Brazil, the largest exporter. The United States, the biggest consumer, has nut yet even made up its mind whether to remain part of a coffee agreement after US delegates will attend next week's talks but there is no decision yet on joining formal negotiation, US officials said.

A producer delegate said: "Whether the US takes part or not is fundamental to negotiations and the future of the pact."

Venezuela to ask creditor banks for new money

CARACAS, Venezuela, July 22. (AP): Venezuela plans to ask its credit banks for new money this month but will not ask to reopen negotiations on refinancing its foreign debt, government officials said yesterday.

Finance Minister Hector Hurtado told a press conference that he and central bank president Mauricio Garcia Araujo will go to Washington and New York later this month, and possibly at the end of next week, to "initiate conversations with private banks" for new funds.

We are not going to ask them to reformulate the refinancing accord. We are going to ask them to lend us more money," Hurtado said.

"Venezuela is going to fulfil its commitments but they (the banks) should understand that the fall in oil prices has made that difficult," he said.

The minister did not specify what form or how much funding Venezuela will seek.

S-P 100 IHDEX 253.82 - 0.44 Oil prices edge firmer

LONDON, July 22, (Reuter): Crude oil prices firmed slightly on Thursday, but were off the day's highs as speculation about the timing of an OPEC prices panel meeting and uncertainty over how Gulf war peace efforts would develop gave international petroleum markets the jitters, traders said.

Towards the close of business in London, Brent blend, the most widely traded crude on international markets, was quoted about 10 cents over levels seen at the same time Wednesday at $15.15 a barrel for immediate delivery. However, this was about 15 cents down from the highs seen earlier in the day. The Organisation Petroleum Exporting countries prices committee can call for a full meeting of the group if prices siray too far from OPEC's official target levels.

The other main topic of interest on the oil markets was the Iran-Iraq situation. Since Iran announced Monday it accepted a United Nations ceasefire resolution, any reports of fighting or news from the area are being closely watched by oil traders.

Benchmark US grade West Texas Intermediate was quoted on Thursday evening London time at $16.10 a barrel, up five cents from the previous US close, while Dubai, the leading Middle East crude, was 10 cents higher than at the same time on Wednesday at $13.80 a barrel.

Dollar sharply lower and gold dips

The dollar ended today sharply below 11-month highs touched early this week, driven down hy several days of central bank mtervention against it.

Dealers said a huoyant US economy still made the dollar, which began a powerful rally just over a month ago. look like a good buy. But central banks' apparent determination to stabilise exchange rates made for caution.

"There's only a limited amount hy which the dollar can go up before it triggers strong intervention." said Roberto Bianchi, foreign exchange manager at Union Bank of Switzerland in Zurich.

The dollar ended the European day at 1.8290 West German marks after Thursday's closing 1.8344 and almost 1.89 at the start of the week. Rates

Speculative money leaving the dollar was attracted by high British interest rates into sterling and the pound gained 1-1/2 cents on -the day to $1.7360.

The dollar has lost three per cent against the mark and nearly four per cent against sterling this its earlier rally was fuelled by growing confidence in a huoyant American economy and a belief that the massive US trade deficit would continue to decline.

It fell after heavy central bank sales this week, when the US Federal Reserve. West Germany's Bundeshank and the Bank of Japan joined forces to stop its advance.

News that US consumer prices rose a modest 0.3 per cent in June after increasing by the same amount in May had little impact on the dollar.

Exporter

Gold closed in London $2 down at $442.75 an ounce. Easier silver prices dragged gold lower, dealers said. The market was unsure what to make of moves by Peru, the biggest silver exporter, to halt exports, and silver closed in London at $7.72 an ounce, below Thursday's $7.87.

In London, share prices were steady at just above the day's midmorning lows but dealers said volume had dropped to a trickte ahead of the weekend.

Prices were marked down in early husiness following declines in both the Tokyo and New York markets overnight and extended their losses in the morning ses-Dealers said some programme selling was triggered by a fall in FTSE index futures while government bond dealers said they detected some switching out of equities into index-linked stock. By 1430 GMT the FTSE 100 stood 16.4 points lower at 1,848 having reached a low of 1.845.9 at 0958 GMT.

After a high of 420p reached on continuing hid speculation, Cadburyshares fell back to stand just 5p higher at 391 after it signed a franchising agreement with Hershey Foods Corp. Hershey will huy the operating assets of Cadhury's US confectionery husiness and will manufacture Cadhury hrands in the US under license.

Deal Dealers said the market's first reaction to the deal, which will cost Hershey $270 million plus the assumption of $30 million of deht, was that it made a takeover of Cadhury less likely as Hershey was one of the main candidates to make an offer.

Dealers said turnover in the rest of the market was modest and any sell programme would tend to have an exaggerated effect. They underlined that there was little real selling pres-

In late trading, prices were ten-ding to ease further with Wall Street giving little support. Traders in New York reported some bargain hunting but said there was still concern over inflation despite a smaller than expected 0.3 per cent rise in US consumer prices for June. The London market also remains troubled over inflation with few traders ruling out a further rise in UK interest rates next 9p rise to 429. week after British halance of payments data for June.

Deficit

After May's record current account deficit of £1.21 hillion, the market is expecting a shortfall of at least £750 million but forecasts go as high as £1.01 hillion.

Traders say a current account gap much larger than expected would rekindle fears that inflationary pressures are rising and lead to pressure for another rise in UK base rates.

Pressure for another hike this week has subsided in the face of a firm pound and slightly easier money market rates.

After they had bad some time to digest the announcement regarding Cadbury, dealers said the deal with Hershey would likely impove Cadhury's overall performance — making the com-pany a more difficult takeover

There had been much talk in the market that Hershey would huy US firm General Cinema's 14.8 pct stake in the UK confec-tionery to soft drinks company.

Away from Cadbury, speculative demand was the cause cited hy brokers for most of the few gainers among the FTSE constituencies. Reed International was third most active with volume of 4.7 million and a Storehouse was 6p firmer at 251 on volume of four million shares. Traders said there was talk that property group Mount-leigh might make another bid after last year's failed attempt to huy the stores group. Enterprise Oil was 8p up at 482 and dealers said news of an appraisal report on the Nelson Field, showing reserves at 175 million barrels compared with the 100 million announced in March, outweighed the impact of enlerprise's bid and share

Stake

Enterprise said it is to pay $276 million for a 10 per cent stake in three oilfield blocks owned by Texas Eastern. The deal will be funded by the issue of 36 million new shares at 440.

Worries about inflation and rising interest rates bave weighed on stock markets throughout the week, with higher oil prices a particular worry in Japan.

Brent crude oil from the North Sea fetched around $15.50 a barrel late on Friday, up about 10 per cent on the week. Traders believe moves to end the Gulf war could clear the way for a tough new OPEC agreement on pricing and production.

Stock dealers hustle in trading at the Tokyo Stock Exchange on Thursday. Share prices closed up and on the day's highs after an up and down session which closed with a late afternoon buying spree, brokers said. (Reuter wirephoto)

Broker predicts copper surplus

LONDON, July 22. (Reuter): -Increased world copper output in 1989 is likely to end a run of bigher prices which began about a year ago, London hrokers Shearson Lehman Hutton said Shearson's quarterly report said production was surging ahead. Prices, which earlier hit spot highs of 150 US cents per pound (0.45 kg) had not regained these levels. Shearson said the current year's surplus would be 65,000 tonnes, against a previous estimate of 130,000 and compared with a deficit last year of just over 300,000 tonnes.

In 1989, production would

ANKARA, July 22, (Reuter): Turkey's move to allow foreign investors to deal in domestic shares is likely to revitalise the fledgling Istanbul Stock Exchange and help the government's privatisation programme, officials and brokers

"It is too early to tell what the effect will be, but in the long run it should be helpful," said Niko Maksimyadis, managing director of brokers Turkinvest.

The government said on Wednesday foreign in vestors were allowed, with immediate effect, to buy shares on the exchange and repatriate profits.

OPEC prices committee to meet

OPEC's five-nation price monitoring committee will meet on August 3 to discuss ways to halt the slide in world oil prices, the Kuwait News Agency KUNA said yesterday.

KUNA quoted a source in Vienna close to the OPEC Secretariat for its report. It gave no venue for the meeting.

The committee, which groups Nigeria, Saudi Arahia, Indon-esia, Venezuela and Algeria, can call for a full emergency meeting (AP): Conservation groups applauded a decision last week by the internalional timber industry to promote environment-conscious logging in the gest tropical rainforest. The US-based World Wildlife Fund said the decision - the first of its kind hy the industry could slow destruction of the Amazon rainforest, a key regulator of the world's weather.

Timber Organisation, an association of 42 producing and consuming countries, approved a S4 million logging and conservation project in the remote jungle state of Acre, on Brazil's border with Bolivia 2,800 miles (4,500 kilometres) northwest of Rio de Janeiro.

Project

The project calls for "integrated" development of jungle products -- such as Brazil nuts, ruhber and timber - rather than simply cutting down trees and leaving the land fallow.

Loggers also are to consult with environmental groups, government agencies, native Indians and local workers to plan long-term development that hope the Acre project can serve as a model not just for the rest of the Amazon but for all tropical organisation.

But conservationists are worried about the effect on the climate of uncontrolled logging in the Amazon basin, a 2 million square-mile (5.2 million squareEurope - that covers parts of seven South American countries and contains one-third of the world's rainforest.

Already the Amazon forest is disappearing at the rate of some 27 million acres (11 million hectares) a year, mostly at the hands of small farmers and ranchers who cut and burn the trees,

Markham said. "The rainforest is a gaseous sink for carboo dioxide. The trees soak it up. If we cut them down, there's no way to get rid of the gas. And that contributes to the greenhouse effect." he said.

The greenhouse effect is a gradual warming of the earth's surface because of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere that traps the sun's heat, like a greenhouse.

"Weknow the Amazon will be used. It's too big a resource not to be used. But we think it's better if that happens under the auspices of the ITTO," Markham s.ud.

The Acre project, which will get about $3 million from the Brazilian government and the rest from the timber organisation, is the largest approved since the organisation was founded in

GJFU, Japan, July 22, (Reuter): Provincial Japanese cities are jumping at a new idea to boost their economies — expositions.

Six cities held expos of various kinds last year to help attract national attention, husiness and tourists. This year, the number is up to 16 and at least 10 have been afready announced for next year.

Exposition

The themes of these expositions - some might say excuses -vary widely, from flowers and food to toys and outer space, and so does their scale.

But a total of some 70 million people are expected to visit these expositions in 1988 and 1989, equivalent to nearly two-thirds of Japan's population.

Gifu. a medium-sized city of 400,000 people in Central Japan. has joined in the exposition trail with Future Watch '88, which opened on July 8. One of the main reasons for staging this exposition is 10 invigorate Gifu and create a new image for Gifu," said local official Takemasa Obata, who is on the expo's planning commit-

"The aim is to make the city more widely known to the rest of Japan and to the world," he added.

Factions

The expo is sponsored jointly by local government and business organisations, and officials expect a turnout of up to three million visitors for the 73-day event. Gifu has little to recommend it from a tourist point of view but

Japanese cities try expos to boost their economies the organisers are trying to make the most of the historical sites and hi-tech factories in the the event will invigorate Gifu people's thinking and activities." The expo's theme — future watch - was chosen because

Gifu wants to give itself a more modern image, said Harry Hill, adviser to the committee on international relations, The exposition features a lifesize model of the US space shuttle and exhibits which stress advanced electronics. Saitama Prefecture, oorth of Tokyo, staged "'88 Saitama Expo" from March 19 to May 29 this year, attracting 2.5 million visitors and a surplus of some 200 to 300 million yen ($1.5 to 2.2 million).

"We believe we have attained, fostering a feeling of solidarity between Saitama's north and south, and publicising its new image," said Moriyoshi Suda of Saitama's exposition promotion The port city of Yokohama, close to Tokyo, is to stage "Yokohama exotic showcase (YES '89)" from March to October next year. Organisers estimate 12.5 million people will visit it.

Masatoshi Mizutani, of the Yokohama Expo Association, said the event, to be staged ir a new water-front district, is designed to encourage the development of the area into an "intensive information town.' Organisers bave their financial sights set high. They expect Yokohama's husinesses to benefit from the exposition to the tune of more than 1,000 billion yen ($7.5

Tyson, Cayton agree on 'split' decision

Bruno prays for a phone call (Reuter wirephoto)

NEW YORK, July 22, (Renter): Mike Tyson and his manager Bill Cayton came to a 'split' decision in their contractual dispute in court yesterday as the pair came face to face for the first time since last month's Michael Spinks

Judge David Edwards instructed Cayton's lawyer, Thomas Puccio, to do the bonours and hand out cheques for the amounts agreed—$10 million to Tyson and $5 million to Cayton.
Tyson's trainer Kevin

Rooney, who was not present, will get $1.5 million as his share for the Tyson-Spinks bout that lasted just 91 seconds in Atlantic While the immediate money matter was resolved -outside of an outstanding two or three million dollars - the immediate fight future for Tyson was not. Still in question is Tyson's next scheduled defence, against Briton Frank Bruno on Septem"It didn't come up," said Puc-

But prospects for an overall settlement between Cayton and Tyson, which would clear the way for future fights, looked much brighter. "I'm optimistic there can be a total settlement," said Puccio.

What's clear from today is that Bill Cayton and Mike Tyson can work together." Tyson wants to get out of a four-year contract with Cayton running to 1992. The heavyweight champion claims he was deceived when he signed last February since he did not know that friend and former co-manager Jim Jacobs was dying at the time. Jacobs died a month later and full managerial control went to Cayton.

Lack of immediate confirmation that the Bruno fight would go ahead brought a measure of disappointment on the other side of the Atlantic.

Promoter Jarvis Astaire had called a news conference in a London hotel last night in hopes that be would be able to announce that the fight was on.

The Wembley venue is in jeopardy because September 3 is the only available date and there is a chance that Tyson-Bruno could be upstaged by a concert by rock star Bruce Springsteen, who performs there on September 2 and wants to go on again the next day if the fight falls through. Bruno turned up to the news conference but left early,

obviously irritated and dispirited. "I've been working out today but it's been a bit difficult to concentrate because I bad been expecting to come here and learn it was all on," be said.

"I'll be really down if it doesn't happen-because I have been training for it for two months."

Krishnan and Gilbert upset

WASHINGTON, July 22, (Reuter): Derrick Rostagno and 16-year-old fellow-American Michael Chang both pulled off upsets to advance to the quarter-finals of the $415,000 D.C. Classic tennis tournament yesterday.

Rostagno, the 16th seed, ousted second-seeded compatriot Brad Gilbert 6-4 6-3, while Chang eliminated fifth seed Ramesh Krishnan of India 6-4

For the fourth successive night, rain marred the night programme this time forcing the third-round match between topseeded American Jimmy Connors and 15th seed Jorge Lozano of Mexico to be postponed until today.

Also advancing to the quarters
were third-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador, Americans Aaron Krickstein, the fourth seed, and eighth-seeded Jay Berger, seventh-seeded Darren Cahill of Australia and unseeded Barry Moir of South Africa.

Rostagno, rated 82 in the world, took control of both sets at 3-3 and held on to win each when Gilbert failed to capitalise on three games in which be held 40-15 leads.

Rostagno, who has beaten Gilbert in two of the three career, meetings, said he was pleased with his tennis but that he did not play up to his potential.

Chang, who lost to Krishnan in his professional debut in Memphis, Tennessee, in Fehruary, did not allow the smooth-stroking-Indian to control the points.

Instead, Chang applied pressure hymoving Krishnan around the court with his aggressive groundstrokes, while looking for openings to win points.

The left-arm paceman, who had to pass a fitness test on a back injury before play started, showed no signs of discomfort and wrecked the Surrey middleorder by trapping Ian Grieg lbw with a yorker then bowling Keith Medlycott and Nigel Feltham with successive balls. Surrey were dismissed for 253.

Wasim was the best when Lancashire crumbled to 140 all out yesterday. He hit a defiant 58 to save his team from a follow-on. Wasim then sent back Grahame Clinton and fellow opener Paul Atkins when Surrey made 51 for two in their second innings by close yesterday. -

South African-born Roy Pienaar struck an unbeaten 74 and helped to sustain Kent's bid for the championship in the face of a fine all-round performance by Northamptonshire's Richard Williams. In-form Pienaar, who faced 127 balls and hit a six and eight fours, spurred the leaders to 268 for seven, at which point they declared 61 behind on first mnings at Northampton.

Kent then snapped up two quick wickets, reducing Northants to 18 for two before bad light

Williams did his best to put a brake on Kent's drive for the title, and at the same time over shadowed Dennis Lillee's return for Northants after an ankle

After extending his overnigh 46 to 71 not out, Williams snap ped up five for 86 with his off spin. Lillee trapped Trevor Ward lbw in his fifth over and endec with one for 43. Unbeaten

Australian captain Allan Border scored 55 and Keith Fletcher made an unbeaten 45 as secondplaced Essex edged two runs ahead of Hampshire on a raincurtailed day at Portsmouth.

Dutch paceman Jan Bakker took his fifth wicket of the innings by dismissing Border, but skipper Fletcher guided Essex to 203 for seven before a downpour washed out the last two sessions.

WELLINGTON, July 22. (Renter): New Zealand and Somerset cricketer Martin Crowe slammed a proposed restructuring of the English county game which could cost him his Somerset contract.

The plan of England chairman of selectors Peter May would restrict counties to one overseas player.

"He (May) is just looking for an excuse because England doesn't have many good homegrown players at the moment." Crowe who has returned to New Zealand because of injury, said in a newspaper interview published today.

Somerset has two overseas players on its books, the recuperating Crowe and Australian all-rounder Stepben "As far as I'm, concerned, overseas players bave been propping up the championship for a number of years now, and it would be a backward step if they whittled it down to what he wants.

"Ir's not as if we're keeping good players out of jobs. The overseas player is only keeping the worst player in the side from playing. The best players are still all there."

Counties this year are allowed to have two overseas players on their books but able to play only

Crowe said Somerset is likely to fight May's plan. Crowe is contracted to Somer-set until the end of next year.

He said May is attacking the symptoms, but not the cause of the declining English game. "They've got to restructure the whole county championship," he said. "May wants to have 16 great idea. But by restricting counties to only one overseas player, you're penalising the wrong people.

On Wednesday, May called for a three-point overhaul of the English first-class game to "improve our cricket."

Former England eaptain May said: "First we need to alter the programme of our game. That means there should be 16 fourday games to make up the county championship."

"There should be only one overseas cricketer allowed on the staff of a county club." May

"And we have got to battle for better wickets. That is what the selectors want. This sort of thing needs stirring up occasionally and I thought I would stir it up again," said May.

Sri Lanka's opening match ends in draw

OXTON, England, July 22, (Reuter): Sri Lanka's two-day opening tour match against a League Cricket Conference side ended in a draw yesterday with less than two hours' play possible on the second day.

Overnight rain seeped under the covers on to the pitch to delay the start until 1430 GMT.

Then, after the League Cricket Conference had declared their second innings closed at 120 for four leaving Sri Lanka to score 130 in 65 minutes, rain brought a premature end to the match.

Concede

Sri Lanka declared their first innings closed at the overnight total of 138 for three, to concede a deficit of nine runs.

The Conference side were then indebted to a superb 43 from Steve Gordon, a Jamaican in England on a one-year cricket scholarship.

Gordon struck five flowing fours in a 79-minute innings before be was caught behing off the bowling of leg-spinner Brian Rajadurai.
